

FUNDING TO MUSIC PROGRAMS, 1998-99

- In 1998-99, the Canada Council for the Arts provided grants worth $21.2 million to musicians and music organizations in Canada.
- Funding to individual musicians assists both classical and non-classical musicians in their professional career development goals. In 1998-99, 41 classical and 65 non-classical musicians received grants totaling $1.1 million. Additional programs which fund individual musicians as well as musical groups include grants for sound recording ($552,180 in 1998-99) and music touring grants ($969,710 in 1998-99).
- Within the Canada Council's music grant programs, 62% of all funding in 1998-99 was awarded to professional orchestras ($8 million) and opera and music theatre companies ($5 million). Thus, grants to music organizations in 1998-99 received a higher percentage of funding than grants to individuals.
- In terms of Canada Council funding allocations, music received the highest amount of funding of all disciplines. The music budget of $21.2 million comprised 19% of Council funding for 1998-99 (see Table 1b).
- Funding to music organizations and musicians is widely dispersed across the country in 147 different cities and communities (see Table 2). However, a significant percentage of funding is concentrated in two Canadian centres featuring prominent and internationally recognized music communities. Toronto received $6 million in Canada Council music funding, while Montréal musicians and music organizations received $3.7 million.

SOME FACTS ABOUT MUSIC IN CANADA

- Data from Statistics Canada's 1998 General Social Survey¹ reveals that over 18 million Canadians listened to CD's, tapes or records in 1998. 43% of those listening to tapes, CD's or records did so on a daily basis.
- Canadian music sales worldwide totaled $1.44 billion in 1998, accounting for 2.5% of total worldwide music sales².
- The creation of the compact disc and Canadian-content regulations for radio have had dramatic impacts on the Canadian music industry. Federal and provincial/territorial governments have attempted to offset some of the competitive disadvantages faced by Canadian sound recording companies through the introduction of various financial development programs. In 1997-98, federal and provincial/territorial governments spent close to $14 million dollars on these programs, an increase of 57% from the previous year³.
- Data taken from Statistics Canada's monthly Labour Force Survey⁴ indicates that the number of musicians in the labour force grew from 31,552 in 1988 to 34,121 in 1998, a rise of 8%. Data from the 1991 and 1996 Censuses indicates an increase in the number of conductors, composers and arrangers (up 9%).
- Analysis of the Labour Force Survey reveals distinct employment patterns among Canadian musicians. In 1998, close to 65% of musicians worked part-time compared to 22% of all culture workers. Self-employment predominates in this sector of the cultural labour force; in 1998, 78% of musicians were self-employed (approximately 24,200), compared to 36% of culture workers.
- The Labour Force Survey provides additional details about the profile of Canadian musicians. In 1998, 48% of employed musicians were male and 52% were female. 58% of musicians were over the age of 35, which parallels the labour force ratio of 60%. Finally, proportionally more musicians had a university education than the total Canadian labour force (40% of musicians compared to 20% of the total workforce).

¹Statistics Canada's General Social Survey details, among other things, the participation of Canadians aged 15 and over in cultural activities.

²"Worldwide music sales hit U.S. $38.7 billion in 98". The Record, May 24, 1999. Volume 18, Issue No.40.p.3.

FINANCEMENT ACCORDÉ AUX PROGRAMMES DE MUSIQUE EN 1998-1999

- En 1998-1999, le Conseil des Arts du Canada a accordé des subventions d'une valeur de 21,2 millions de dollars aux musiciens et aux organismes de musique du Canada.
- Les subventions octroyées aux artistes individuels ont aidé tant les musiciens de musique classique que ceux de musique non classique à poursuivre leurs objectifs d'avancement de leur carrière professionnelle. En 1998-1999, 41 musiciens de musique classique et 65 de musique non classique ont reçu des subsides d'une valeur totale de 1,1 million de dollars. D'autres programmes sont venus en aide aux musiciens et aux groupes de musique, notamment ceux des subventions à l'enregistrement sonore (552 180 $ en 1998-1999) et des subventions de tournées de musique (969 710 $ en 1998-1999).
- En 1998-1999, 62 p. 100 de toutes les subventions attribuées dans le cadre des programmes de subventions en musique du Conseil des Arts du Canada ont été allouées à des orchestres professionnels (8 millions de dollars) et à des compagnies d'opéra et de théâtre musical (5 millions de dollars). L'aide accordée aux organismes de musique a donc été plus importante que celle qu'ont reçue les musiciens individuels.
- De toutes les disciplines artistiques, c'est à la musique que le Conseil des Arts du Canada a consacré la plus grande partie de son budget de financement. Ainsi, la somme de 21,2 millions de dollars réservée à la musique comptait pour 19 p. 100 du financement versé par le Conseil des Arts en 1998-1999 (voir le Tableau 1b).
- Le financement accordé aux musiciens et aux organismes de musique est réparti dans tous les coins du pays, comme en témoigne le fait que 147 villes et communautés différentes en ont profité (voir le Tableau 2). Un pourcentage élevé du financement est toutefois concentré dans deux centres canadiens dont les communautés musicales sont reconnues à l'échelle internationale. Ainsi, Toronto a reçu 6 millions de dollars des sommes versées en musique par le Conseil des Arts du Canada, tandis que les musiciens et les organismes de musique de Montréal se sont partagé 3,7 millions de dollars.

QUELQUES FAITS SUR LA MUSIQUE AU CANADA

- Des données provenant de l'Enquête sociale générale de Statistique Canada⁵ révèlent que plus de 18 millions de Canadiens ont écouté des disques compacts, des cassettes ou des disques en 1998. De ce nombre, 43 p. 100 le faisaient de façon quotidienne.
- À l'échelle internationale, les ventes de musique canadienne se sont chiffrées à 1,44 milliard de dollars en 1998, ce qui représente 2,5 p. 100 des ventes totales de musique dans le monde⁶.
- La création du disque compact et les mesures législatives sur le contenu canadien dans les émissions radiophoniques ont eu une incidence marquée sur l'industrie de la musique au Canada. Les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux ont tenté d'atténuer les désavantages qu'ont les entreprises canadiennes d'enregistrement sonore sur le plan de la concurrence en mettant sur pied divers programmes d'aide financière. En 1997-1998, ces gouvernements ont consacré près de 14 millions de dollars à de tels programmes, ce qui constitue une augmentation de 57 p. 100 par rapport à l'année précédente⁷.
- Selon l'Enquête mensuelle sur la population active de Statistique Canada⁸, le nombre de musiciens faisant partie de la population active est passé de 31 552 en 1988 à 34 121 en 1998, soit une hausse de 8 p. 100. Des données provenant des recensements de 1991 et de 1996 indiquent que le nombre de chefs d'orchestre, de compositeurs et d'arrangeurs a augmenté de 9 p. 100.
- L'analyse de l'Enquête sur la population active révèle une tendance de l'emploi distincte chez les musiciens canadiens. En 1998, près de 65 p. 100 des musiciens travaillaient à temps partiel tandis que chez l'ensemble des travailleurs culturels, cette proportion n'atteignait que 22 p. 100. Le travail indépendant prédomine au sein de ce secteur de la main-d'œuvre culturelle; en 1998, 78 p. 100 des musiciens travaillaient à leur compte (soit approximativement 24 200 d'entre eux), comparativement à 36 p. 100 des travailleurs culturels.
- L'Enquête sur la population active fournit des renseignements supplémentaires sur le profil des musiciens canadiens. Ainsi, en 1998,

48 p. 100 de ceux qui avaient un emploi étaient des hommes et 52 p. 100, des femmes. En outre, 58 p. 100 des musiciens avaient plus de 35 ans, ce qui correspond d'assez près au pourcentage de la population active (60 p. 100). Enfin, proportionnellement, les musiciens sont plus nombreux à avoir fait des études universitaires que la population active canadienne dans son ensemble (40 p. 100 contre 20 p. 100).
